*modelled on the Odyssey of Homer, but set in the squalor of Dublin’s slums; parallel characters in the two works, and the same structure are deliberately invoked to stress the sordid meanness of modern life as contrasted with life in the heroic age. The ‘stream of consciousness’ technique and the internal monologue are used with great power. The book was banned as obscene. Published in the same year was The Waste Land, both present a similar view of the hopeless dilemma of man in the postwar world.
Virginia Woolf – novels - The Voyage Out (1915), Jacob’s Room (1922), Mrs Dalloway (1925), To the Lighthouse (1927), The Waves (1931), Orlando, a Biography (1928) – a fantasy
